Don't think this office is necessarily at fault if your paper does not arrive when you think it should. The August 17, 1918, issue of a weekly magazine published in New York, of which the writer was a subscriber, reached him last week, and the Brattleboro Reformer of Saturday, reached our exchange desk Tuesday morning.

The unexpected has happened and the independent telephone lines in this county are to remain and be operated as independent lines. With wise and careful operation of the property and some forbearance upon the part of the people these lines will become not alone useful throughout the southern part of the county, but a good business investment. Whether its operation will have any effect upon toll service proposed to be inaugurated by the New England company or not is a question. At any rate this paper is pleased to see independent telephone lines remain in this county and the traditions of our independence, referred to by some down-state paper, maintained.

The passage of the Vermont woman's suffrage bill over Governor Clement's veto by the senate, again proves the contention of this paper that Governor Clement is out of step with Vermont. In the first place he is a minority governor. Darling and Howe both represented principles which Clement did not and their vote combined was much larger than Clement's. The expression of one well acquainted with the situation, covers the point. When asked how the governor was as to his popularity, replied, "Well, I guess he is holding his own." Frankly, Clement is a disappointment to this paper. We had hoped and expected he would show exceptional ability somewhere, but have failed to note any talent above the average governor yet.

Swift & Co., The Standard Oil Co., and many other large interests are resorting more and more to printer's ink to keep their names and their business before the public eye and mind. Advertising in newspapers and magazines and various booklets, explaining, and reasoning with the public, are moulding and shaping matters to their benefit, and smaller business interests of all kinds in city and country should take cognizance of this fact and present their claims and rights to the people or the strain and stress and fierce competition of the next few years will smother them.
A new day is at hand and there must be every effort to keep abreast of the times for, while a league may keep nation and peoples from future wars, no law but the law of the survival of the fittest will reign in the commercial world of the next decade or two.

Vermont in the War.

It is doubtful if any state in the Union has a better showing than that of Vermont in the percentage of men who came forward and offered themselves for the service before they were called in the draft, according to a statement issued from the office of Adjutant General Johnson. From the records in his office, Gen. Johnson has compiled some interesting figures.
These figures show that out of 15,000 Vermont men who have been in the service during this war, more than 10,000 or fully 75% were volunteers.

Of the 7,443 who went into the service through draft boards in Vermont 3,232, or over 40%, volunteered ahead of their regular order and were not really called through the draft process.
This takes no account of the 7,500 or more Vermont men who volunteered and went into service before the selective service law went into effect.

There were 400 delinquents in Vermont, including men who registered and failed to return their questionnaires, men who disappeared and others who deserted after getting into service. By keeping close tabs on these matters, the number of men who had to be finally classified as delinquents was only 145.

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY.

Greene Prominent in Next Congress.

As things shape up, it looks as though Congressman Frank L.
Greene might not quite a figure in the 66th Congress.—Rutland Herald.

Opportunity for Congressman Dale.

The appointment of Congressman Dale as chairman of the committee to investigate the operation of the treasury department will give him an opportunity to show his ability as a congressman. This is the first responsible position that has come to him since he became a member of congress. We do not know what irregularities may exist in that department but feel confident there is opportunity to recommend some improvements in methods that call for real ability.—Brattleboro Reformer.

Vermont's Granite and Granite Men.

The Vermontor who opens the last number of The Vermontor and discusses that splendid double-page illustration of "The finest mausoleum in the United States" can hardly escape a touch of pride over the mausoleum in the granite quarries of Barre granite, quarried and cut and carved by the Jones Brothers at their plant in a Vermont city that is what it is today because of an inexhaustible supply of granite, and energy and skill in working it into most beautiful and artistic shapes. The accompanying article on Vermont's granite industry, by H. J. M. Jones, is full of interest; and this issue of the state magazine contains also other readable features, including a sketch of the writer of the article above mentioned, who, while connected with the management of the largest granite monumental plant in the world, has been Vermont's fuel administrator.—Ludlow Tribune.

Deserved Tribute to Mothers.

One of the striking truths stated to the students of U. V. M. by Gen.
Clarence R. Edwards was his belief that manhood and superiority of soul of the American soldiers as a class accounted in no small degree for American success on the field of battle. He added this far-reaching and never-to-be-forgotten admonition:

"Show me a good soldier and I will show you a man who had a good mother."

There is grand encouragement as well as incentive for all mothers in that short but all comprehensive and convincing sentence. Many a mother on the mountain side, far removed from the haunts of fashion and luxury, is bringing up her boy with all the yearning and love of the clinging vine while attending to the man-ifold duties of exacting housewifery.
The way seems dark at times, and ominous clouds lower; yet a mother's faith pierces the shadows and sees far over the valleys below to the heights of the future beyond and sees her boy, whatever his walk in life, a true man among men. God bless the good mothers, whose loving service and sacrifice help press the world's strains, moral men and noble women!

Pulse of Vermont Town Life.

About the most interesting reading that has appeared in the Vermont exchanges during the last few days has been the summary of the town meetings held in many of the 247 cities and towns of the state Tuesday. Even one may have no association with a town, may even never have been in the town, there is something which compels attention to the recounting of the pulsing details of the annual town meetings, for in those meetings is centered the life of the town. For one brief period the attention of the whole town is directed toward the meeting which shall hear the reports of activities of the year just past and which shall make the plans for the ensuing year, together with the election of officers to carry out those plans. Only a percentage of the voters of the town may be in actual attendance at the meeting; yet the thoughts of all the voters are drawn, sooner or later, to the doings in that meeting. The taxpayer must pay the tax which the voters in town meeting levy; the parent is naturally interested in the persons who are to have charge of the schools in which his child or his children attend; someone may consider that the road leading to his farm is not kept in the best possible condition, so he turns to the road commissioner for relief for conditions that ought to be remedied; and the road commissioner is, of course, elected at the annual town meeting; a town clerk and town treasurer must be elected in whom the confidence of the people is reposed; it may be that someone is destined to become so unfortunate as to be compelled to call upon the town for support during the coming year and the town overseer of the poor then becomes a person of powerful influence even though forbidding of mien and the overseer of the poor is generally elected at the town meeting.
So it goes through the whole list of officers and through the whole process of corporation and community life, the whole current of affairs depends upon, and has its start at the annual town meeting.

No wonder, then, that the annual town meeting is the magnet which attracts the attention of all people in a given town even though it does not always draw them to the voting place itself; and, furthermore, it is not remarkable that the activities of the town meeting furnish interest, entertainment for those who are not even indirectly concerned with the affairs of that given town. Long may the town meeting flourish and continue the clearing-house of the ideas of the people of the town. In it lies much of the secret of the success of representative government.—Barre Times.
